LETTER CARRIER REACHES ONE MILLION

District Manager Angela Curtis (r) presented Million Mile Award to Charlotte's Downtown Station Letter Carrier Charles Davis, and Wife Alpha (l) affixed Million Mile pin to lapel.

Employees at Charlotte's Downtown Station celebrated and honored Letter Carrier Charles Davis with the presentation of the National Safety Council's Million Mile Award. Mr. Davis began his career as a letter carrier in 1980 and has sustained no motor vehicle accidents.

Wife Alpha joined Downtown Station employees, District Manager Angela Curtis, Human Resources Manager Dave Mills, NALC President John Walden, Safety Manager Stephanie Harris and Safety Specialists Aileen Livingston and Laura Brown for the celebration.

Station Manager Ron Cole said, "Mr. Davis is the ultimate professional at work. He loves his job, his customers and fellow employees. He always has a big smile, a hug, and greets everyone in the morning."

What does it take to achieve this milestone? Charles says it's not him. "God is looking out for me. Before I leave the parking lot every morning, I pray for safety for me and my co-workers, too."

After many rounds of applause, employees gathered to celebrate the event with cake and punch.
