Construction is not easy work.

It's hazardous.

Risks are everywhere.

Falls from heights can be fatal. In fact, falls are the leading cause of death among construction workers. But falls don't have to happen.

Employers need to ensure workers are properly trained and equipped to perform work safely when working at heights.

The National Safety Council Construction & Utilities Division is working to ensure every employer in the industry has the information and tools they need to keep their workers safe – whether they are working on scaffolding, an I-beam or on a pole.
