

Acknowledgements and list of attendees

We would like to thank the researchers who prepared and presented papers at the symposium. Each one is a recognized leader in the field of teenage driver research. Their participation was critical to the success of the symposium.

In addition to the researchers who prepared papers for these proceedings, we would like to thank Steve Blackistone, Kevin Quinlan, Barry Sweedler, and Elizabeth Vermette for their presentations during the symposium on how the GDL research is used in practice.

The concept and leadership for the symposium came from Chuck Hurley, vice president of the Transportation Safety Group, National Safety Council. The symposium was organized by the Council's Bill Combs, policy and programs specialist, and Alan Hoskin, the manager of the Statistics Department.

We are also grateful to the organizations that provided funding for the symposium: General Motors, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, and Nationwide. Additional support for the proceedings was provided by the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

We are also indebted to the expert participants in the symposium, listed below, who provided feedback to the presenters and alternative points of view in the discussions that followed the papers.
