

National Safety Council

Position/Policy Statement

OSHA Adoption of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) 2000 Standard

The National Safety Council supports the efforts of the National Fire Protection Association and other electrical industry organizations to seek adoption and promulgation of NFPA 70E, "Standard for Electrical Safety Requirements for Employee Workplaces" (2000 edition) by OSHA as an electrical safety standard in construction, general and maritime industries.

This position statement reflects the opinions of the National Safety Council but not necessarily those of each member organization.
