

ADID Draft Edits Project on Current NSC Policies

The Draft Edits Project involve an ongoing informal collaborative review of NSC policies relevant to those in the fields of alcohol, drugs, and impairment (ADI). The draft edits are not recommendations, positions, or constitute any otherwise endorsement by the ADID. Rather they inform on additional developments, evolved research, or potential application of ADI since NSC adopted their policy. The draft edits may assist as an investigative aid on an ADI aspect. The draft edits are from the limited perspective of practitioners in ADI, whereas the NSC has broader perspectives, development, and resources to develop policies that are often multidisciplinary in nature. The draft edits also serve as a beacon to ADID members on relevant NSC policies, and beckon for ongoing input toward their further development. The draft edit documents will be stored on an internal Box platform. The project is led by Dr. Michael Corbett, currently Division Chair of the ADID.
